The Stanford Center on Poverty and Inequality is pleased to announce the winners of our 2015-16 New Scholars Grant Competition:

Keith Gunnar Bentele, University of Massachusetts Boston

Safety Net Research Group[2]

A Tale of Two Recoveries: Understanding State-level Trends in Market-generated Poverty, Poverty Relief, & Overall Poverty Following the 2001 and 2007-09 Recessions

Kendra Bischoff, Cornell University

Education[3]and*Segregation*[4]Research Groups

Income Segregation and Student Achievement Gaps, 1996-2010

Deirdre Bloome, University of Michigan

Mobility[5]and*Inequality*[6]Research Groups

Income Dynamics and Lifetime Income Inequality in the United States

Siwei Cheng, University of California, Los Angeles

Inequality Research Group[6]

The Shifting Structure of Intragenerational Inequality

Amy Hsin, Queens College, City University of New York

Education Research Group[3]

Undocumented and Legal Immigrants in Higher Education: Immigrant Status, Legal Status and Educational Outcomes

Alexandra K. Murphy, University of Michigan

Poverty Research Group[7]

What About Transportation? Developing a Measure to Capture an Understudied Dimension of Poverty

Brian Thiede, Louisiana State University

Racial and Ethnic Inequality Research Group[8]

Born Poor? Racial Diversity, Inequality, and the American Pipeline

Kristin Turney, University of California, Irvine

Poverty Research Group[7]

The Unequal Consequences of Childhood Poverty: Considering Time-Varying and Heterogeneous Treatment Effects

Previous Winners

2014-2015
2012-2013[11]
2011-2012[12]

Back to Top

• Login

• Research
• Programs
• Publications
• Subscribe
• Contact

Stanford University | © 2017 Stanford Center on Poverty and Inequality
All rights reserved

Links