America's Poverty Course [1]

It's a special moment in U.S. history in which income inequality has reached unprecedented levels, poverty remains extreme, and racial and gender inequalities are intransigent. Why is there so much inequality and poverty? How might they be reduced? Find out from the country's top scholars in our course on poverty and inequality. The course is offered through Stanford Online [2] and the course videos are listed below.

Income Inequality

- The Takeoff in Income Inequality: Emmanuel Saez [3]
- The Winner-Take-All Economy: Robert Frank [5]
- Deunionization: Bruce Western [6]
- How Much Inequality Is Too Much?: Richard Freeman [7]

The Experience of Poverty

- U.S. Poverty in Perspective: Sheldon Danziger [8]
- Living in Poverty: Kathryn Edin [9]
- Poor Neighborhoods: Robert Sampson [10]
- Unstable Housing: Matthew Desmond [12]
- Having Children in Poverty: Kathryn Edin [13]

The Causes of Poverty

- Childhood Development: Jack Shonkoff [14]
- Early Childhood Intervention: James Heckman [15]
- Neighborhoods and Multi-Generational Effects: Patrick Sharkey [16]

Educational Access

- The Rise in the Income Achievement Gap: Sean Reardon [18]
- Gaps in Educational Attainment: Richard Breen [19]
- The Slowdown in Higher Education: Michael Hout [20]
- Psychological Intervention: Carol Dweck [21]

Education Outcomes

- What Influences Student Learning?: Richard Arum [22]
- Is a College Degree Still the Great Equalizer?: Florencia Torche [23]