

Podcast: Are Unplanned Pregnancies Always Unplanned?

Diantha Parker talks with NYU sociologist Paula England ^[1] about how young women think about contraception when their economic future is uncertain.

CPI's podcasts, hosted by Diantha Parker ^[2], feature discussions of cutting-edge research on poverty, inequality, and social policy. Funding comes from the Elfenworks Foundation, The Russell Sage Foundation, and the United States Department of Health and Human Services.

Reference Information

Publication Date:

February 2012

◦ Login

Back to Top

◦ Research

◦ Programs

◦ Publications

◦ News

◦ Subscribe

◦ Contact

Stanford University | © 2018 Stanford Center on Poverty and Inequality
All rights reserved

Source URL: <https://inequality.stanford.edu/publications/media/details/podcast-are-unplanned-pregnancies-always-unplanned>

Links

[1] <http://as.nyu.edu/object/paulaengland.html>

[2] <http://www.journalism.columbia.edu/profile/193>